Better Together

"Show respect for others – each person has a special gift. Share what you have – giving makes you richer. Know who you are – you are a reflection of your family. Accept what life brings – you can not control many things. Have patience – some things can't be rushed. Live carefully – what you do will come back to you. Take care of others – you can not love without them. Honor your elders – they show you the way in life."

President's Message

I want to thank everyone from our Shareholders, Board members, customers, and employees for your support. What has stood out for me during these unprecedented times is how we have all come together at Cape Fox. We have been a team and a family. While these have been unique times around the world, we at Cape Fox were not exempted from feeling the effects of the Coronavirus, COVID-19 has affected all of our daily lives. Cape Fox Corporation (CFC) is a strong company, and we will get through this even stronger if we continue to work together.

During this time, there have been some changes and adaptations to our businesses. Our Federal Contracting Group employees have had to make a few adjustments in their daily lives, such as transitioning to remote work. Our Commercial side has felt the most significant effect from the Coronavirus. Cruises are on hold, forcing our tourist season to be pushed back further than hoped. Restaurants and bars were told to close for in-service dining. With cruises on hold and restaurants and bars having to reduce services, our commercial lines of business have felt the most significant effects of the outbreak while our federal side has had less impact. This allows our federal side to offset many of the revenue impacts CFC may be having. To that end, we look for ways to support the community of Saxman and Ketchikan and our CFC Shareholders in other ways.

Before this outbreak, CFC was enjoying a successful close to 2019 with revenues higher than initially projected, and the start of 2020 already promised to be a year of growth for CFC. On the Commercial side, we had acquired a couple of new businesses, Bar Harbor Ale House and 108 Tap House and Burger Bar, to add to our Cape Fox family. Bar Harbor Ale House had its grand opening the first week of March and enjoyed a couple of weeks of business before having to shut its doors to in-service diners. 108 Tap House and Burger Bar is finishing up renovations and will open its doors when businesses return to daily activity. While our restaurants and bars have been significantly affected, they also found ways to adapt to the situation. The Cape Fox Lodge restaurant, Heen Kahidi, Bar Harbor Ale House, Sweet Mermaids, and Dockside Galley all began to-go and delivery services to ensure they could provide for the community. The Village Store increased its online presence on its Facebook and Instagram pages and began taking merchandise orders to mail to customers through phone and social media requests. On the Federal side, we added a new customer with the United States Postal Service. We have already won several contracts this year with the Food and Drug Administration, USAID, U.S. Navy, U.S. Army, and the Defense Health Agency.

Message from CEO Chris Luchtefeld

While all of the cancellations and disruptions we hear about in the news may seem unsettling, CFC will continue to monitor this situation closely and make sure everyone is kept informed.

We will continue sending out updates and continue creating an environment where you can stay online and still feel connected. The uncertainty surrounding the pandemic makes all of us anxious. As a reminder, Cape Fox Corporation has several resources available to you including our Employee Assistance Program and our Human Resources team. We also have each other. Coronavirus is teaching us that we are all in this together, and we need each other for support.

Rest assured that all of our corporate resources are still up and running as usual. Our customers are paying their bills, and the company is moving forward. There have certainly been impacts to some individuals, whether it is a shift to telecommuting, a furlough, or other effects.

We look forward to moving past this challenging time and returning to our usual routines as soon as possible. In the meantime, please continue to read our email updates and to reach out with questions, suggestions, and news. We are always happy to hear from everyone. ■

CFC was nominated for this award by members of the Ketchikan community for CFC's philanthropic efforts, business, and job opportunities. Tim Lewis said, "The entire Cape Fox family would like to say 'Thank You' to our community for all the support you've shown and continue to show us. Together we all make Ketchikan home. As a company, we will continue pushing forward to bring new and exciting things to our town, allowing solid job opportunities to our residents and revenue streams for Ketchikan. Community is everything!"

This was the 41st annual Ketchikan Visitors Bureau Community Awards, which honors individuals and tourism businesses who give back to the community through customer service, volunteerism, and other innovative contributions. The annual banquet raises funds for the Kris Geldaker Memorial Scholarship. The annual scholarship provides $2,500 for students pursuing tourism-related career opportunities. ■

Cape Fox Stands Together With Our Community

Cape Fox Corporation (CFC) spent the day giving a bag of essential food and non-perishable items to those in need. By the end of the day, 120 gift bags were given to families in Saxman, Alaska.

Clifford Blair, CFC Board of Director's President, had the vision for this event. Many CFC and Cape Fox Lodge (CFL) employees put his idea into action by finding supplies and filling gift bags. Inside each bag was sugar, flour, coffee, Kool-Aid, dish soap, laundry detergent, toilet paper, donuts, tea, chips, and bread. On the day of giving, Clifford Blair and Business Analyst with CFC, Andrew Levian, drove the Faces of Ketchikan vans. The mayor of Saxman, Frank Seludo, along with CFC, CFL, and CFT employees, Tim Lewis, Chris Lemerond, Billy Joe Thomas, Denny Blair, and City of Saxman employees, placed the gifts at each door.

CFC cares and believes strongly in giving back to the community. CFC felt this small gesture would go a long way in lifting the spirits of our people in the community during the recent sheltering from the Coronavirus. During difficult times, showing even the smallest gesture of kindness helps more than anything. By standing together, we can get through anything. ■

CFC Announces Newly Redesigned Website!

Over the past several months, Cape Fox Corporation (CFC) has worked hard to redesign the entirety of their website. Well, it is HERE! On March 20, 2020, capefoxCORP.com went LIVE with a redesigned site.

The primary objectives of CFC's new site were focused on providing a user-friendly, information resource to learn about CFC and all of its subsidiaries both commercially and federally. capefoxCORP.com was updated to be more modern and provides an easier way to learn about resources, services, news, and updates.

Many of the new functions and content includes:

- Commercial – Information on all CFC Commercial businesses and links to learn even more through websites and social media.
- Federal – Information on all CFC Federal Contract Group subsidiaries and a link to capefox-FCG.com website.
- About Us – Includes both a past and present discussion on CFC and the Tlingit Alaska Natives, who are the backbone of CFC.
- Community – A brand new community section that highlights how Cape Fox Cares, and how Cape Fox gives back to the community.
- News – The news section is expanded to view even more with press releases, newsletters, and updates.

After listening to the suggestions, CFC is delighted to launch the newly redesigned site so visitors can have an improved web experience with more news, information, and heritage. ■

Coronavirus has most of us social distancing from each other, working from home, wearing masks to buy groceries, and washing our hands more than usual.

We are protecting ourselves from physical harm, but we also need to be aware of the financial damage it can also cause. When people are left vulnerable as we all are with the pandemic, hackers and thieves swoop in and take advantage. Sadly, as we are trying to be more cautious, we may be leaving our financial identities vulnerable. Below are three of the most common scams to be aware of and some tips to avoid getting caught in their trap.

1 Website Scams

There are many types of website scams involving COVID-19, the most common are:

- IT-themed sites that say they will help you work remotely.
- Coronavirus-themed sites that say they track the disease or help those who are sick.

Scammers often target individuals who work remotely. With many businesses closed for in-office work, there have never been more remote workers. Scammers can track companies whose employees are working from home and then use those employees to try and gather information or to download malware. Especially during these difficult times, many company websites have taken to putting their employees' contact information online. This provides easy access to a scammer being able to reach out to you directly. A scammer can pose as an IT help desk worker needing to remote access into your computer, and while there, they can place malware on the victim's computer.

Scams are not just IT help desk scams. There is an increase in phishing emails, as well. The phishing scam may include misleading information about the company's healthcare policy, sick leave, or other HR-related policies that require individuals to click on links.

Those are the direct attacks. There are also fake Coronavirus websites. During these turbulent times, individuals often seek more and more information on Coronavirus. Many of the sites contain false information, and for example, when you click on a map to view the infection rates in your county, that link may be putting malware on your computer. Many of the maps may even seem legitimate as scammers get more sophisticated. However, when you click on the map, the embedded malware is stealing usernames, passwords, credit card numbers, and other data stored in your browser.

Another popular website visited during a crisis are donation sites. Many donation sites are not legitimate. When you put in your information to donate, you may be giving your money to criminals, along with your sensitive financial and personal data.

2 Snake Oil Products

A hundred years ago, some products promised to cure any ailment you can imagine. If you had hair loss, a potion was promising to grow it back. If you wanted to build more muscles or even be taller, there was a product promising that. Snake oil products exist still today, and with the Coronavirus, many products are promising to cure or protect you from the disease.

If you visit the Federal Trade Commission website, they discuss these scams. The FTC is working hard to get many removed from shelves and off the internet. They say on their website, "The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) warns consumers explicitly about such scams: "There currently are no vaccines, pills, potions, lotions, lozenges or other prescription or over-the-counter products available to treat or cure Coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) – online or in stores."

3 Bad Investments

One of the other side effects to the Coronavirus has been more than individuals getting sick and some dying, more than businesses having to close or work remotely, it has also been the steady decline of the stock market. This decline means many retirement accounts and investments have seen reduced gains, and many even have steep losses. Scammers have played on the fear individuals may have over finances by promising riches where there is none. Many thieves may be offering no-risk investments that are safe and profitable.

In reality, any investment that promises gains without the potential for loss is a scam. While some investments do have a lower risk than others, if you have money in the market with stocks, bonds, or funds, there will still be the potential you could experience some loss.

If you are in an extreme situation and need cash to pay mortgage or rent, for example, many lenders during this time are more flexible with fees.

Staying Protected

Scammers will always use the fear people have and situations to their advantage. But, you can protect yourself in any of the above circumstances. If you are working remotely, do not click on links that do not seem right nor open emails from senders you do not recognize. If you are being asked personal information for any reason, always verify the source, and, if you are donating to a charity, make sure you are giving to a reputable, recognizable charity that is willing to share their giving reports. Never give your personal information over the phone to anyone you do not know.

While we may be anxious for any type of news and information, remember to stay calm and do not click links or give money, or panic over investments. To learn more about these scams and others being tracked by the Federal Trade Commission, go to www.ftc.gov. ■

While Cape Fox was fortunate on its federal side to have more minimal consequences, its commercial team did have to make more adjustments. Cape Fox was proactive in trying to understand all the needs of its employees and the company to ensure we can still have a positive outcome in 2020.

Federal Contracting Group

While the federal contracts have had a more minimal impact from the Coronavirus pandemic, there has still been an impact. Most of our contracts have had to transition to telework situations. This has included ensuring new technologies are established and new software programs are used. Telework protocols had to be created and new guidelines for some contracts to ensure security and data safety. Cape Fox did a great job getting everyone set up to work remotely with the systems and programs needed. Our contracts are still active and maintaining the Cape Fox standard of efficiency and maintaining mission requirements.

Commercial

All of our commercial businesses are located in the Village of Saxman and Ketchikan, Alaska. On March 11th, the major cruise lines canceled all cruises into Alaska for a period of time, while on March 17th, Governor Dunleavy of Alaska closed all bars and restaurants for dine-in services. Most of our major commercial businesses rely on tourism. This meant several had to adapt to new regulations. Our restaurants, the Heen Kahidi restaurant in Cape Fox Lodge, Bar Harbor Ale House, Sweet Mermaids, and Dockside Galley, started offering to-go and delivery services. The new Cape Fox entity, 108 Tap House and Burger Bar, was nearing the end of renovations when the orders to close were instituted. Once the restrictions are lifted, 108 Tap House and Burger Bar will have its grand opening.

Many things will return to normal in Ketchikan once the restrictions on businesses are lifted. CFC will again be able to hire for summer positions, tourists will be visiting and experiencing the city, and everyone will be enjoying the full menu offerings while dining in our beautiful Alaskan restaurants.

Corporate

When concerns over the pandemic began, Cape Fox appointed a Safety and Emergency Preparedness Committee. This committee currently has six members on it with plans to include more possible members in the future. The objective of the committee is to:

- 1 Identify corporate, federal, and commercial vulnerabilities
- 2 Discover our current redundancies
- 3 Plan for potential scenarios
- 4 Assign tasks to leads

Cape Fox has also recognized the impact this pandemic has had on our Shareholders, employees, and customers. We have continuously sought ways to alleviate many of these needs when we can.

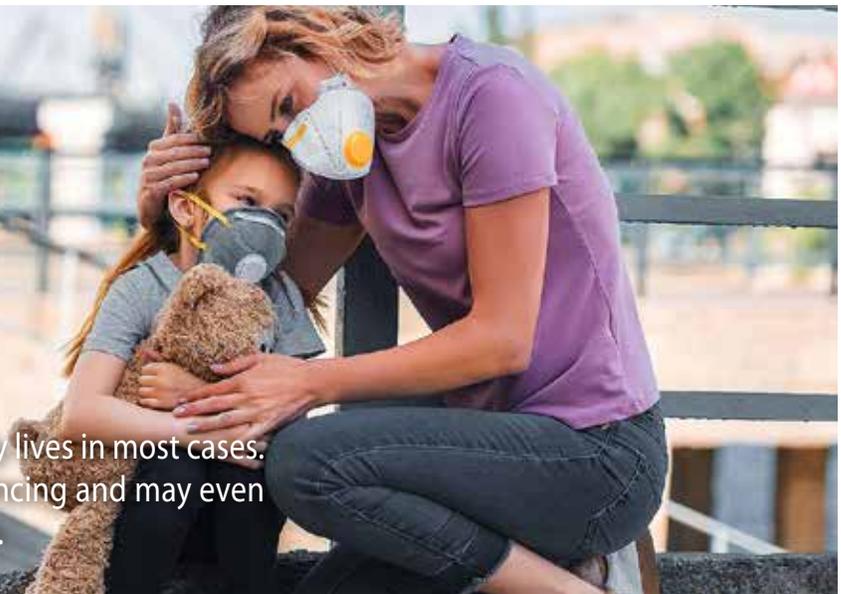

One of the primary missions of Cape Fox is to support our Shareholders. Alaska felt the effects of the Coronavirus in many employment and financial ways. In April, the Cape Fox Board accelerated the distribution of the 2020 Spring 7(j) dividend to our Shareholders, which went out in early April. The Board also authorized a second dividend distribution, which went out at the end of April. The growth of the company has allowed CFC to send these two dividends. Our hope is by Shareholders receiving their dividends; it will ease some of the financial burdens caused by the outbreak. CFC is focused on our Shareholders, and we want to do what we can to support our community.

While there have been many challenges that have arisen from this global pandemic, Cape Fox has tried to ensure our company, our Shareholders, our employees, and our customers are united because we are all Team Cape Fox. Our Cape Fox Team has come together in unity in unprecedented ways, which has continued the strength and success of the business. Additionally, we have increased corporate communications to provide continuous news and updates, social connections so even when we are apart; we are together, and maintaining our operational standards. The most significant response Cape Fox has seen from this Coronavirus is that we are still Cape Fox Strong. Go Team Cape Fox! ■

Keeping Your FAMILY SAFE in the Future

Coronavirus has disrupted our daily lives in most cases. We are now practicing social distancing and may even be experiencing financial hardship.

However, one lesson we can take away from this unique situation is to have a plan to protect ourselves and our families during a disaster. When times are “normal,” and we are living our daily lives, we do not often think about what we may need if a disaster strikes. Having a plan in place can often help save us physically and maybe even financially when a natural or man-made disaster may strike.

There are many steps you can take now to help you and your family be better prepared for the unexpected.

1 Take Advantage of Technology

- Update your contact lists in your phone, email, and social media. You can even create a group list so you can reach out to the necessary people in your life immediately for information and updates. Remember what you call the group list, e.g., My Emergency Contacts. Keep your contact information updated.
- Send updates by text and the internet. Often during disasters, voice communications are not available. Know how to send texts and internet messages from your cell phone, which people tend to keep close. Typically, when voice communication is not available, you can still send text messages or access the internet.
- Keep extra batteries for your phone and keep them in a safe place. If you own a car, purchase a car phone charger because you can charge your phone if you lose power at your home.
- Program “In Case of Emergency” (ICE) contacts. Make sure you have your ICE contact in your cell phone listed. This helps emergency personnel contact those people for you if you are unable to use your phone. Let your ICE contacts know that they are programmed into your phone and inform them of any medical issues or other special needs you may have.

- Keep one non-cordless phone receiver. If you have a traditional landline phone, keep at least one non-cordless receiver in your home because it will work even if you lose power.
- Forward your phone number. If you are evacuated and have a call-forwarding feature on your home phone, forward your home phone number to your cell phone number.
- Keep a prepaid phone card. Even if you have a cell phone, it is good to keep a prepaid phone card on hand to use if needed during or after a disaster.
- Prepare and distribute a family contact sheet. Have a contact sheet displayed or distributed with names, relationships, and phone numbers.

2 Store Your Financial and Other Critical Records

- Having important documents, such as personal and financial records, on hand can be essential when going through a disaster. Keep these documents in a fire-proof safe with a personal combination lock. Or, you can now store them in a password-protected area in the Cloud or on a secure flash or jump drive that you can keep readily available. A flash drive can be put on a key ring to be accessed from any computer anytime, anywhere.

Red Ticket Incentive

The Red Ticket Incentive was designed to bring motivation and encourage CFC Shareholders to update their Shareholder profiles. It also ensures that CFC has the most current contact information for each individual Shareholder as well as fulfills their wishes in regards to their shares and life insurance. For a chance to win $200.00 cash at future Shareholder meetings, the following must be completed on or after January 1, 2020 to be eligible:

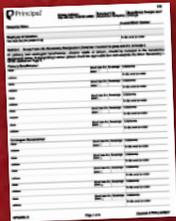

1 Register for MYCAPEFOX.com

2 Fill out Testamentary Disposition Form

3 Fill out Principal Life Beneficiary Designation Form

Please contact Shareholder Services by email or phone to inquire about your Shareholder profile before the next meeting – shareholderservices@capefoxcorp.com
907.225.5163

- Your important documents should include items such as personal and property insurance, identification including Driver's license/passport (for you and family members), and banking information.

3 Prepare a Disaster Supply Kit

The kit should include:

- Enough non-perishable food and other supplies to last your family three days without outside assistance
- Anything specific to your family such as prescription medications, infant formula and diapers, and pet supplies
- One gallon of water per person per day for drinking and sanitation
- Battery-powered radio, a NOAA weather radio, and extra batteries
- Flashlights and extra batteries
- First Aid supplies
- A whistle to signal for help
- Moist towelettes, garbage bags, and plastic ties for personal sanitation
- Dust masks or cotton t-shirts to help filter the air
- Plastic sheeting and duct tape to shelter in place
- A tool kit with a wrench and pliers to turn off utilities
- A manual can opener
- A sleeping bag or warm blanket for each person
- Clothing appropriate to the climate with one change of clothing for each person

4 Maintain Your Kit

Just like your groceries need to be discarded when old and stored appropriately, so does your Disaster Supply Kit. This means you may have to replace some supplies periodically.

- Keep canned food in a cool, dry place
- Store boxed food in a tightly closed plastic or metal containers to protect from pests and to extend its shelf life
- Throw out any canned goods that become swollen, dented, or corroded
- Place new items at the back of a storage area and older ones in the front.
- Change stored food and water supplies every six months
- Review your disaster kit every year to make sure it fits your family's changing needs

5 When You Know A Disaster or Situated is Nearing

- Make sure your automobiles are fully fueled: gas stations may run out of fuel or be unable to operate gas pumps if the power goes out.
- Make sure you have enough cash on hand to cover emergencies. ATMs may stop working.

These are only suggested steps to take to start preparing for future events. You can learn about more steps and things you can do to keep you and your family safe in case of an unexpected disaster at www.ready.gov. ■

Cape Fox Commercial HIGHLIGHTS

The plan for our Cape Fox commercial businesses was to have an exciting year full of celebration and growth. It has so far been a very exciting year for the first quarter of business, but not exactly in ways we could have imagined. Many of the commercial companies felt the most significant effect of Coronavirus. All restaurants and non-essential businesses had to shut their doors. However, our Tlingit heritage taught us much about adapting and overcoming adversity. We responded in ways that allowed our companies to continue even at more modest standards.

Cape Fox Lodge

This year Cape Fox Lodge (CFL) is celebrating its 30th anniversary. While we cannot celebrate together, we are proud of this momentous milestone. CFL was built by Alaskan natives, many of whom remember the construction and early days fondly. While CFL is not able to accommodate tourists visiting Ketchikan for the 2020 tourist season, and being conscientious about the safety and welfare of its staff, the Lodge has only accepted private contracts. CFL has been practicing social distancing, we are ready to open our doors for business again.

We look forward to making our 30th year another successful year for the Lodge.

Dining

On March 18th, Alaska Governor Mike Dunleavy closed all restaurants and bars statewide for dine-in services. All of Cape Fox businesses who offer dining services adapted by offering pick up and delivery options. Businesses able to provide these options are the Heen Kahidi Restaurant at CFL, Bar Harbor Ale House, Sweet Mermaids, and Dockside Galley.

Once the restrictions on in-service dining are lifted, Cape Fox will be ready to open its doors to the community and visitors wanting an exceptional Alaskan inspired meal or just a quick pick-me-up. We will also be excited to open the doors to a new establishment, which is finishing its final renovations, 108 Tap House and Burger Bar. We cannot wait!

In the meantime, if you want to keep your distance but view some of the delicious chef-created meals all of our dining services offer, check out their social media pages. It will leave your mouth watering for some tasty Alaskan fare.

Shopping

The Village Store may not have been able to open its doors as planned for the 2020 tourist season, but we curated a lovely collection of merchandise in our local retail spaces (The Village Store at Saxman Totem Park & The Village Store at CFL). We have used our time during this shutdown to build our online retail space.

We are also excited to announce that our online store is ready to go live. If you see something on our social media pages and you want to order it as a gift or as a treat for yourself, just send us a private message, and we can process your payment over the phone. We will ship the item directly to your desired address.

Check us out at:

Facebook: facebook.com/TheVillageStoreSaxman/

Instagram: instagram.com/the.village.store/

Our social media accounts, as well as our upcoming online retail space, not only highlight the retail merchandise but allows us to include the beautiful faces that make up our Cape Fox family. All the featured models for the items being showcased are Cape Fox Shareholders, staff, or family members and friends. We did this because they truly are "The Faces of Ketchikan."

When ordering items via social media, we ask for the following information:

- Desired Item/Items (and quantities)
- Shipping Zip Code
- Phone Number
- Preferred Time to Call – this is strictly for payment and shipping information

As long as USPS continues to operate, The Village Store will continue to ship. We are proud of the products we offer, and we are proud to introduce our art and our heritage to the world.

Lands Management

As you can imagine, the Coronavirus pandemic has also affected our lands management. The White River key process has had to make alterations to its processing. Currently, we are not checking out any keys to any Cape Fox Corporation Lands. If you currently have a key, we will not be forfeiting nor updating anyone on who currently has a key. We look forward to being able to return to our normal processing system once COVID-19 has diminished and we can return to our normal lives. ■
